COURSE BACKGROUND & OBJECTIVES:

The place of good corporate governance in the public and private sector to a country's development cannot be emphasised. Indeed, corporate governance in Kenya and the East African region has evolved considerably especially over the last three decades. Yet several challenges remain including incessant boardroom wars, collapses and operational shortfalls amongst others. These challenges point to both inadequacy in the laws, and non-compliance with governance and regulatory standards in line with existing laws and guidelines.

This course is designed to provide participants with opportunity to learn and reengage with practical knowledge, skills and the law on good corporate governance and standards in Kenya and the East African region. Participants will also be taken through the constitutional, statutory and policy underpinnings governing the corporate sector and related policy instruments. It is also important to understand the socio-political place of all institutions of sector, and strategies of corporate governance and board management. The training will delve into be both theoretical and practical underpinnings of corporate governance, including policy and regulatory implementation. It's also designed to draw on comparative studies regionally and internationally.
